

Proudly P.Geo.

"I've been involved in the mineral exploration field for nearly forty years and it's been a wonderful career. Every day has brought something different: different projects in different areas; different teams working together to solve problems and make discoveries. My work has always been challenging and seldom routine – definitely not a 9 to 5 office job. I've never wanted to do anything else.

Being a Professional Geoscientist indicates to the industry, the public and your colleagues that you meet and exceed knowledge and ethical standards, and that you are adept at navigating today's heavily regulated work environment."
