

APGO at the PDAC Convention 2014

The recently concluded PDAC Convention 2014 attracted more than 25,000 delegates from around the world. PDAC hosted a record number of international mines ministers and garnered the biggest attendance to date by Canada's Members of Parliament that included Prime Minister Stephen Harper. There was a general consensus that the worst is over for the mining industry and optimism, while cautious, is beginning to grow.

Every year, APGO makes it a point to participate at the PDAC Convention. It strives to be where members are in order to provide face-to-face opportunity to connect and inform.

Again this year, APGO's Registration Team, Aftab Khan, P. Geo., Registrar and Renée Coulcher, Deputy Registrar were at the event for 4 days to provide information to members, geoscience students and individuals interested in being a registered professional. The event provided an excellent opportunity to extend APGO's outreach to individuals who are potentially practising geoscience in Ontario.

APGO Registrar, Aftab Khan, P. Geo. quotes, "The PDAC Convention is a great opportunity for APGO to communicate more effectively and clearly the value that APGO as an association provides, and to increase the awareness among geoscience professionals of the requirements for licensure in Ontario."

Deputy Registrar, Renée Coulcher, also adds, "It is always rewarding to re-connect with individuals who, years prior, were only first learning about professional geoscience registration and who are now proud APGO members."
